Fieri grew up in a working-class family in Northern California. His parents divorced when he was young, and he and his two sisters were raised by their mother. Fieri developed a love of cooking at an early age, and he began working in restaurants when he was just 15 years old.

After graduating from high school, Fieri attended the University of Nevada, Las Vegas, where he studied hotel management. But he soon realized that his true passion was cooking. He dropped out of college and moved to California, where he opened his first restaurant, Johnny Garlic's, in 1996.

Johnny Garlic's was a success, and Fieri soon opened several more restaurants in California and Nevada. But in 2006, he was diagnosed with thyroid cancer. Fieri underwent surgery and radiation treatment, and he eventually made a full recovery.

The cancer diagnosis was a wake-up call for Fieri. He realized that he needed to make some changes in his life. He began eating healthier, exercising more, and spending more time with his family.

In 2007, Fieri was approached by Food Network to host a new show called "Diners, Drive-Ins and Dives." The show was a huge success, and it made Fieri a household name.

Since then, Fieri has hosted several other shows on Food Network, including "Guy's Grocery Games" and "Guy's Ranch Kitchen." He has also written several cookbooks, and he has launched a line of food products.

In Cook Story Remaking Life From Scratch, Fieri shares his story with candor and humor. He writes about his humble beginnings, his struggles with cancer, and his journey to success. But more than anything, Cook Story is a book about the power of food to transform lives.

Fieri believes that food is more than just sustenance. It is a way to connect with others, to celebrate life, and to make a difference in the world. He shares stories of how food has helped him through tough times, and he offers practical advice on how readers can use food to improve their own lives.

Cook Story Remaking Life From Scratch is an inspiring memoir that will resonate with anyone who loves to cook or is looking for inspiration to make a positive change in their life.
