The boy who fell was named David. He was 10 years old, and he loved to play in the woods behind his house. One day, he was climbing a tree when he slipped and fell. He hit his head on a rock, and he died instantly.

David's parents were devastated. They couldn't believe that their son was gone. They grieved for him every day, and they never forgot him.

Years later, David's parents were walking in the woods when they saw a boy sitting on a rock. The boy looked just like David, and he was wearing the same clothes that David had been wearing when he died.

David's parents were stunned. They couldn't believe their eyes. They ran to the boy, and they hugged him tightly.

"David," they said. "You're alive!"

The boy smiled. "Yes," he said. "I'm alive."

David's parents were so happy to have their son back. They took him home, and they loved him more than ever before.

But David was different now. He was quieter and more thoughtful. He didn't like to play in the woods anymore. He preferred to stay home and read books.

One day, David told his parents that he had a secret. He said that he had been visiting the woods every day since he died. He said that he had been talking to the animals, and they had told him things that no one else knew.

David's parents were worried about him. They didn't know what to believe. But they loved him, and they wanted to support him.

David continued to visit the woods every day. He would sit on the rock where he had died, and he would talk to the animals. The animals would tell him stories, and they would teach him about the world.

David learned a lot from the animals. He learned about the importance of life and death. He learned about the power of love and forgiveness. He learned about the beauty of the natural world.

David's parents were amazed at the changes in him. They saw that he was becoming a wise and compassionate young man.

One day, David came home from the woods and told his parents that he was ready to move on. He said that he had learned everything that he needed to learn from the animals.

David's parents were sad to see him go, but they knew that it was time for him to move on. They hugged him tightly and told him that they would always love him.

David smiled. "I love you too," he said. "And I'll never forget you."

David walked out of the house and into the woods. He walked to the rock where he had died, and he sat down. He closed his eyes and took a deep breath.

He could hear the animals all around him. They were singing to him, and they were telling him goodbye.

David smiled. He was finally at peace.
